Novelty Rockets

P/N 061802, (Foam)

Kit Number	Kit Name
-------------------	-----------------

2027	Pop Fly
------	---------

The foam ball provided in this kit technically functions as a nose cone, but does not mate to any presently available body tube. It is included here only for the sake of completeness.

BT-5 Based Rockets

P/N 060620/060621, (Two Part Injection Molded)

Kit Number	Kit Name
-------------------	-----------------

0806	Fire Streak SST

This two-piece nose cone has a shoulder that fits a BT-5 body tube, and when fitted together has a shape similar to P/N 070252, BNC-50AD (the K-27 Honest John nose). The base of the nose is tangent to a body tube 0.882" in diameter (the Fire Streak is a snap-together ARF model, having a two-piece BT of this diameter). Perhaps an ambitious modeler might find a way to clone an appropriately scaled Honest John with it. Also note that the 6.5" motor tube in this kit has been assigned P/N 030306, the same as the older BT-5P, which is 5.1" long.

* In 1987 (the last year for the Star Dart), Estes replaced the BNC-5AW nose (see above) with the PNC-5A. The kit also had its fin stock replaced with the die cut fin sheet from kit #0871, Vector. These changes meant that in its last year, the Star Dart was a virtual clone of the Vector, except for its livery.

The PNC-50V and PNC-50BB nose cones are identical. However, the PNC-50BB mold comes with a tail cone as well. It seems that Estes has inconsistently numbered the part in kit #1260, as no tail cone is supplied in this kit.

P/N 071028, PNC-50KA (Blow Molded)

Kit Number	Kit Name
EK-25/1419	Alpha II
1388	Apache-2
1225*	Alpha
1914	Galactic Taxi
1920	Starship Excalibur
2109*	Renegade
2126	Tech-Pak

*Note: The Renegade lists its PNC-50 nose as a PNC-50KA, and it has the same shape as the Alpha blow molded nose. A strict comparison of this nose to the Apache/GT/SE/A II shows a small difference in shape: the Alpha/Renegade nose is a tangent ogive, while the Apache/GT/SE/A II nose has a shorter ogive portion, extending from a short cylindrical section. Clearly two different molds have been used.
